

If necessary he would make a fight before the new committee.

The New Committee.
In the event that Mr. Todd cannot be induced to drop out of the race and then clarify the situation at once the whole question will be reopened to-morrow. It would come up as a matter of course when the committee begins to plan for the campaign since it would have to recognize one of the men as the nominee, and work for his support and for the defeat of anybody opposing him. If it recognized Todd it would have to fight Todd, which would be equally disagreeable to some others. So there is no possibility that a reopening of the question can be avoided.

Apert from this, however, there will probably be some independent movement to have the thing gone into again. At least two of Mr. Brauer's staunch supporters are still on the committee; two or three of the new ones are among the number that consider him the nominee; and two or three others, originally against Brauer, have changed their base. The force thus mustered would be sufficient to precipitate something. At all events Mr. Brauer, it can be said positively, is turning his guns in the direction of the new committee and is preparing to make a fight to the bitter end of the party nominee.

At this point there arises the very important, but very much unsettled, question of how the new committee can approach the matter. Several gentlemen high in the councils of the party were considered yesterday, but they were unable to point out the way. It is a tangle that even their skilled hand could not unravel. It was suggested that if such a step was desired the only thing to be done was for the committee, acting as a committee Democratic Committee, without reference to whether it was the new or the old, to reconsider any former action by the Henrico Democratic Committee as the nominee. If the committee and committee and committee, acting as the former body, it would place itself in direct conflict with the latter, and would put two regularly recognized nominees in the field.

This, however, is the nature of the academic discussion. Before the committee decides to recognize Brauer at all, if it ever does, there will probably be a long and lively fight on the part of several of the members who are still dead set against him.

of Chinese machine made goods which are to enjoy a rebate on the import tax, an exemption from export tax. Finally, it provides the method of investigation of complaints and declares that an imperial edict shall be issued, at a date to be hereafter fixed, setting forth the details of the new taxation and charging the various high officials of the empire with carrying it out.

By another article the Chinese government agrees to the establishment of a new warehouse for the citizens of the United States at the open ports of China.

MINING OPERATIONS.
By article VII the Chinese Government agrees within a year to permit citizens of the United States to carry on in China territory mining operations and other necessary business connected therewith.

Articles IX, X and XI provide for the protection of trade-marks, patents and copyrights, respectively. In article XII, the Chinese Government agrees to take the necessary steps to provide for a uniform national coinage, which shall be a legal tender throughout the empire.

Article XIV relates to Chinese Christians and to missionaries. It inures to the former the free exercise of their religion, and protects them against the injustice of the native officials, while, however, removing the right to carry on religious or charitable work for American missionaries the right to interfere with the exercise of the native authorities of their jurisdiction. To the missionaries it secures what they have sought for years, recognition of their right to rent and lease in perpetuity such property as their societies may need in all parts of the empire.

At the request of the Chinese Government an article has been incorporated in the treaty by which the United States consents to the prohibition of the importation into China of morphia, and of instruments for its injection.

Another article of the treaty provides for the opening of international trade in the same conditions and manner as other places now opened to like trade in China of the cities of Fengtien, Fu Mukden and Antung, the first capital of the Manchurian province of Shantung, and the latter port on the Yalu River, on the road between Mukden and Wiju, in Korea.

INVESTIGATION WILL GO ON TO-NIGHT

The Municipal Investigation Committee will hold a session at the City Hall at 8 o'clock to-night, and several witnesses will be examined, though up to a late hour last night, it had not been determined who would be summoned. Chairman John B. Minor says every effort will be made by the committee to complete the work by November 1st, and he thinks it will require only a few more meetings to complete the taking of testimony.

SERVICES CONTINUE AT BROAD-ST. CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Philpott preached his final sermon at Broad-Street Church last night. There was a large attendance and two young men were converted.
So great is the interest manifested that the services will be continued to the meetings yet. There will be services to-morrow and probably all next week, conducted by Rev. Mr. Philpott, Mr. W. N. Lear and L. B. Betty. Mr. Betty will preach to-night.

ARE FULL OF LEARNING

Addresses Made by Two Great Women Scholars.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Mrs. Agnes Smith Lewis and Mrs. Margaret Dunlop Gibson Speak to a Very Large Audience—Both Bear Degrees.

Mrs. Agnes Smith Lewis and Mrs. Margaret Dunlop Gibson, of Cambridge, England, known as the two greatest woman scholars in the world, and the only famous woman textual critics now living, addressed a large audience of representative Richmond people in the chapel of Union Theological Seminary last night. The lectures related to their discovery of the noted Syriac palimpsest in the Convent of St. Catherine, on Mount Sinai, and a stereopticon well illustrated all the points of interest which were brought out.

These learned ladies, each bearing the honorary degrees of LL. D. from the Heidelberg and Edinburgh Universities, by their remarkable scholarship, amazed by the large audience of scholars to whom they spoke. Greek, Hebrew, Chaldaic, Syriac and Arabic, slipped volubly from their tongues as they hastened through the many intricacies of textual criticism and the vast circuit of palimpsest speculation. That women could be such scholars seemed never to have entered the minds of many who were present, especially by the feminine element, who are not given to textual criticism as a rule. And as the lecturers proceeded their learned discourses the ladies present.

"Gazed, and still the wonder grew, That two small heads could carry all they knew."

PRESENTED BY DR. MOORE.

The lecturers were introduced by Dr. Walter W. Moore in his usual gracious and eloquent manner. He himself, one of the profoundest of modern scholars in America, was entertained by these ladies in Cambridge, England, last summer.

After two hours of lecture and stereopticon work in the Seminary chapel, a magnificent reception was tendered by the Seminary Library, where a great number of representative Richmond people were presented to the famous woman scholars.

Mrs. Lewis began her lecture with a short history of the Aramaic language, a tongue which, in the Hebrew and Syriac, was in Palestine during the period of Christ's life, and for two hundred years before that time. She then proceeded to explain in a masterly way the old palimpsest, a document which, in the original, contained the text of the New Testament, and advanced many points of great interest to scholars of this fascinating subject. She explained many apparent discrepancies in the Gospels, and showed how the same text had been copied in different hands, and how the scribes in copying the old manuscripts, she took up a series of examples and showed how verses had been transposed and sentences misplaced. In many places, the scribes had been misled by scribes, who in copying had left out a sentence, and another scribe, looking over the work, had placed the correction in the margin. This correction was then copied into the text, and the entire sense of the passage perverted. In this way, she contended, many apparent inconsistencies of the New Testament might be explained.

DEEP LEARNING.
The speaker, by frequent reference to the original languages of the Scriptures, showed her perfect acquaintance with Greek, Aramaic, Syriac and Hebrew, and her valuable and ready quotations from each of these languages to establish her points caused wonder and admiration among the less sophisticated representatives of the fair sex in the large audience.

Mrs. Lewis gave a full account of her travels in the East with Mrs. Gibson, telling of their discovery of the palimpsest, their trips on camels' backs and explorations. She told in a graphic manner their visit to the Convent of St. Catherine, on Mount Sinai, where they discovered the new Syriac palimpsest, and the discovery which has made their names famous in the world of scholars. Her account of their long months of labor in photographing this palimpsest and finally bringing them to England and publishing them was interesting and fascinatingly instructive.

Said she: "Among the Syriac books which they (the monks) showed us I soon picked up a volume of one hundred and seventy-eight folios, which I discovered to be a palimpsest of the Gospels. It was written in Syriac, and I soon perceived that it was a palimpsest, whose upper or later writing contained the stories of woman saints, while the under one was the four Gospels."

She told of how she attempted to photograph these 178 leaves, and returned again from England with a party at a later date and succeeded in getting the entire manuscript reproduced.

GOSPELS IN SYRIAC.
These gospels are in Syriac, and are substantially the gospels which we have to-day, except that therein are contained dogmatic tendencies which will be sure to arrest the interest of theologians of every school of thought.

Maps of the Shattil Peninsula and many pictures of the manuscripts, and of the Eastern scenes were then thrown on the canvas, and Mrs. Gibson explained all these things to the thorough enjoyment of the large audience.

After the speaking in the chapel a beautiful reception was tendered by the Seminary Library, where the first annual meeting of that organization, which has already proved of great value to the Seminary, was held. The meeting was held in the Seminary Library, and a distinguished company of representative Richmonders, amidst flowers, music and refreshments, were introduced to the noted visitors. The ladies will be entertained to-day by Dr. Walter W. Moore and Mrs. Jamieson, of the Seminary community.

At Cotton Convention.
Commissioner of Agriculture G. W. Koiner and Dr. E. W. Magruder, State University, are attending the convention of the Cotton States Association of Commissioners of Agriculture, now being held at Montgomery, Ala. This is the first annual meeting of that organization, which has already proved of great value to the cotton growers of the South.

OPEN WITH A CONCERT

Horse Show Inaugurated at 11 A. M. Tuesday.

REAL OPENING AT NIGHT

Wednesday's Matinee to Be the Greatest of the Week—The High-Jumping Contest Takes Place Then.

The Horse Show will be formally opened with the concert by the United States Marine Band, on Tuesday next at 11 A. M. A programme of eight numbers has been arranged for this programme, and those on Thursday and Saturday, each concert occupying about two hours. One of the features of the opening day concert will be a cornet solo by Second Leader Walter F. Smith. During the concert the horses in the various classes will be shown in the ring, and will then be judged on conformation, thus reducing the time between the different classes in the evening exhibition. Those who attend will not only enjoy the music, but will thus be enabled to see the horses at their best.

THE REGULAR OPENING.
The Horse Show proper will be opened Tuesday night with the judging of stallions. This will be followed by the judging of horses and runabouts, in which many local horses will be seen, and some of the finest from other places. The programme for the opening night will include the judging of stallions, the judging of horses and runabouts, and will close with the open-to-hunter and jumper class, showing the greatest field of hunters ever gathered in a ring. There are just thirty-six of these, the flower of the equine aristocracy of the land.

At the Wednesday matinee local horses and runabouts will be judged. This is a competition in which there is great interest. There are eight classes of stallions, and there are ten entries in the pony saddle class which follows. There are four competitors for the ribbons in the next class, pairs of horses in harness. There are six entries in the Hackney class, and there are ten entries in the Hackney class. There are four entries in the Hackney class, and there are ten entries in the Hackney class.
